

The Co-Leash Companies Going Green

Launching New Glowing Green Safety Products for Dogs and Cats.

The Co-leash company who brought you the Coleash the first collar and leash combined is going green with GLOWING Safety harnesses. The Newly designed Safety Body Harness for Dogs Glows in the Dark and it reflects headlights for over a mile. The company has always had an eye on safety with the Co-leash your dog always has a leash you can grab when you need, their first invention. Now with the Safety body harness you can keep him on your seat in the car instead of a potential projectile going through the windshield or even worse injuring the owner while flying from the back seat to the front. The owner of the company experienced a head on collision with a flying vehicle when using his designed harness on his own puppy which he's sure saved its life. The harness comes with a Co-leash "Quick Release Seatbelt Stay" for the car to make it easy to get him hooked up when you get in and out. The same Quick release can double as a leash for an Agility or Flyball quick release tab. IT makes a great key chain too and it also glows in the dark like all the Co-leash glowing product line. They recently posted videos on their website and U-Tube showing how they glow in the house and how it functions in the car. When leaving the car they recommend the Co-leash which makes it easy to control his and keeps him within the law which states, "You must have a leash on your dog at all times" This was part of the inspiration for creating the product.

Co-leash was first to introduce smart glowing safety products for your pets and home. It is a huge problem that animals cause trip and fall injuries in the home injuring the pet and often times the owner as well. Statistics are huge in numbers with these types of injuries. Being able to see you pet in the dark in your home or out, is a distinct advantage and a key to safe cohabitation with your favorite furry creature. The Co-leash company makes collars for cats and dogs in several styles. Their goal is to make smart products that serve a need in a pet owner's life and keep them, and their pets a little safer while making their life with their pets a little easier as well... Most of their products are designed to be dual purpose so it can be used several ways saving money on buying many other products to do the same as one. We want to help people save money and make a product that fits their lifestyle with their pets. All Co-leash products are washable making them last longer and better value today that's smart. And they use the sun to recharge or any available light which makes them environmentally safe and no batteries or electronics to monitor or go bad like others on the market. You can take your dog swimming with our products with no damage to their functioning. These products are easy to find and hard to lose because they glow. If not on the pet they recommend leaving them in the light to charge. The company recently released new motion artwork showing the functioning of their signature product for the stores showing how the collar becomes a leash just like magic. Now you see it now you don't. Vendors welcome this can be seen at www.coleash.com Contact company spokesman Mike Forte' toll free 888-838-2169
